SOLD RUM NEAR NAVAL HOSPITAL, WITNESS SAYS
George Bertman, cross-examined by Defence Counsel Essex Abbott at the Chelsea rum conspiracy trial, said he sold liquor "all over Chelsea, from the naval station all along Broadway." Do you mean you sold it at the U. S. Naval Hospital? asked the attorney and witness answered in the affirmative. Witness objected to telling to whom he had sold the stuff at the Naval Hospital, but the court ordered him to do so, and he said it was to Ned O'Keefe. Then he explained that he meant near the Naval Hospital, not inside its gates.

Sells Canadian Ale in Boston at 233 Per Cent Profit

SYNOPSIS
Hilda Stone of West Halifax, Vt., formerly a stenographer at Athol, Mass., young, educated and pretty, turned bootlegger to help her husband out of a financial squeeze in his lumber business.

In the first chapter of her remarkable confession, published in Monday's Boston Evening American, she described how she made up her mind to become a rum-runner after weeks of worry and indecision. She told how bootlegging appealed to her as the quickest way to get money in large sums. She said she concluded she had as much right to smuggle liquor as society leaders and officials had to order and drink it under cover of respectability and that she wasn't any more of a transgressor than they.

The visit of a young man named Dick O. to her husband's mill proved the turning point in her career.

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 3.—I shall never forget my first trip to Canada as a bootlegger. My mind was in turmoil, not through fear, but it was all so new and strange. If I had been less eager to help my husband out of his financial difficulties and had given more thought to the dangers, I might have been slower about adopting the role.

Very early—too early—I discovered the hardships and the humiliations. But once I was in I gritted my teeth and resolved.

Britania, at the League of Nations navy conference, means to regain her job as mistress of the world's oceans and seas. The 5-3 battleship ratio, arranged at Washington, when this nation's sillier "statesmen" consented to scrap our new and half-finished battleships, was a makeshift to hold us back while Britain regained her financial breath.

Britain has real statements: give them time and they will get for Britania what she wants. However, she is welcome to the Continued on Page 14, Column 4.

MOTHER DEFENDS SON WHO FACES COURT IN WORCESTER SHOOTING

Worcester, Feb. 3.—The lips of Mary O'Connor, 18, and pretty, have set in the steel-trap, hard-drawn line of approaching death as she lies writhing on a cot in the City Hospital here.

They have opened but taste since a bullet from a 25 calibre automatic pistol tore its way through her left breast, missed her heart by the fraction of an inch, and lodged in her lung.

Mary is dying, but she smiles weakly and is still saying what is known among her set as "a good word."

Raymond Wentworth was arraigned today in Central district court charged with assault with intent to kill. He pleaded not guilty.

and was held in $2,500 for a hearing February 24.

The youth's mother, Mrs. Eugene Wentworth of No. 14 Vey street, asserting her confidence in her son's innocence, declared Raymond and Mary were ready to love with each other and that she will do all she can to bring about their marriage if the girl recovers.

"They were constantly in each other's arms," she said.

SHAWSHOEN LAYS WOOD SUICIDE TO 3 TRAGEDIES

While a shocked and stunned community on the borders of Andover bowed the head in grief today, the shell of a broken and disappointed man, once a captain of industry, was being prepared for its long journey north from Florida.

William M. Wood, biggest name in the textile industry up to a year ago, comes back home tomorrow for burial in beautiful West Parish Cemetery at Andover, near the gateway to Shawshoen Village.

To the still hush of West Parish, within view of Shawshoen and the structures whose blueprints claim to be the most perfect of the nineteenth century, degree the pain of his several tragedies.

He comes back, a suicide, to the spot of his greatest joys and his blackest sorrow—for sons of the millions that accrued to him or the fame of an industrial leader clinging to his name, ever savaged in slightest degree the pain of his several tragedies.

30 FAMILIES FLEE FIRE IN SOMERVILLE

More than thirty families fled from their homes today when fire destroyed the junk shop of Morris down in the rear of No. 418 Columbia street, Somerville, and threatened to spread to nearby tenements and other buildings.

Help was summoned from Cambridge and all Somerville apparatus was called out to fight the blaze and protect the threatened area, part of which lies in Cambridge.

As soon as the alarm was turned in policemen rushed to the scene and began arousing occupants of the surrounding houses, firemen joining them in the rescue work after the apparatus arrived. Scores of men, women and children were warned to dress quickly and were then let out of the threatened district.

The fire started from an undetermined cause and the building was a mass of flames when the fire was discovered.

ASYLUMS JAMMED WITH INSANE, BRIGGS SAYS

Almost unbelievable conditions exist in State insane hospitals and the "penurious economy policy of the State" is to blame, Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, chairman of the State Board of Insanity, charged today.

The disclosures of Dr. Briggs were made before the legislative committee on institutions while he was urging that the State construct a new insane hospital immediately in Waltham.

So crowded are the insane hospitals because of the present administration's "pinch-penny tactics," the doctor asserted, that last November 2,403 patients were sleeping in corridors and day rooms on improvised cots.

Sleeping conditions in the institutions are so vile, he alleged, that if they existed in tenements, the health authorities would step in and force a correction.

On a visit to one hospital at night, when the corridors were crowded with sleepers, one female was found sick and was forced to crawl over the floor.

BOOTLEG CHARGES HE PAID CHLSEA COP WHO SAID: 'I'M NO DUMMY'

Features in the testimony at the rum conspiracy trial in Federal Court today of Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea and twenty-eight others, were as follows:

Jack Kark testified he was forced to take defendant Eddie Carlson as a partner in the bootlegging business; that he was compelled to contribute to Mayor Quigley's campaign fund, pay for stock in the Quigley-Krone Store, and pay $25 a week to Police Inspector Tom Quigley, mother defendant, a brother of the Mayor.

George Bertman, admitted liquor dealer, testified Police Officer McGreevey, in demanding graft, said: "I am not a dummy on this beat."

Stanley Skudlark testified he was told his liquor business would be closed up unless he bought stock in Quigley-Krone Store, Inc.

Abraham Kravitz, one of the defendants, retracted his plea of not guilty, and entered a plea of guilty, being the fifth defendant to do this since the trial started.

The witness Kark testified he was told by Inspector Quigley he need have no fear of hi-jackers when liquor was being delivered.

Witness Kark said Carlson became his partner in the liquor business.

HUNDREDS SUFFER IN FLORIDA HURRICANE

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 3 (A.P.)—One child was killed, 300 persons were made homeless and property damage estimated at $750,000 was done by a hurricane which swept over West Palm Beach today, destroying a garage building and several homes.

Scores of persons were injured and physicians were sent from Lake Worth to attend them. The city of Lake Worth is organizing for relief work.

Seven families were made homeless and two persons were injured by a hurricane which, accompanied by a heavy rainstorm, swept down upon West Palm Beach today, destroying a garage building and several homes.

Identify of the dead, a baby, has not yet been established. Authorities are checking reports that two babies were killed.

Two persons, R. T. Winters and Mrs. E. K. Fort of Buford, N. C., were injured.

The storm first touched the Georgia avenue section of West Palm Beach, reports indicated, sweeping eight blocks there before striking Green Acres, two miles west of Lake Worth, where the greatest damage was done.

The storm did its greatest damage at Green Acres, a subdivision populated mostly by employees in Lake Worth and the two Palm Beaches.

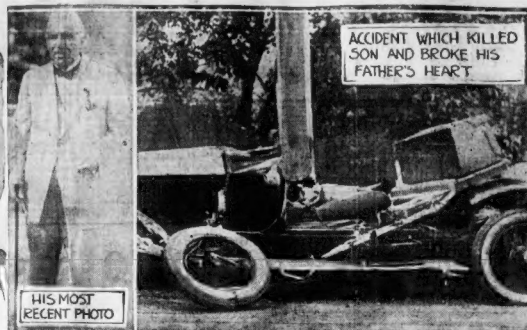

Without warning, the high winds, accompanied by heavy rain, swept the section.

GREAT POWER AND WEALTH FAILED TO COMPENSATE FOR WOOD'S FAMILY SORROWS

Wood was as big a man physically as he was mentally. It seemed that he would have been able to weather any mental stress.

Toward the end, Wood was still an imposing figure despite the grief that came to his estate.

The greatest loss of his career. This is the wrecked state in which his son, William M. Wood, Jr., was killed five years ago at Rye, N.Y. Outwardly the father seemed to have recovered from the shock, but in reality he preyed upon his mind to the extent of seriously interfering with the administration of his great interests, according to friends, and led to his suicide.

The late William M. Wood, Jr., killed in an automobile accident, had become, in a way, a victim of the speeding law.

Realized Wood, his only living daughter, now residing in New York. The other daughter, Irene, died during the influenza epidemic in 1918.

And, the Wood mansion at Shawheen Village, Andover, around which William M. Wood, Jr., had built his life, was a revelation of good taste and in itself paid a tribute to the innate refinement of the "captain of industry" by sheer merit, who rose to a place with the captains of industry by sheer merit.

SHAWHEEN VILLAGE, STUNNED BY GRIEF FOR RETURN OF W. M. WOOD

From the vision of his daughter, William M. Wood was left at rest far from the fountain he erected to the memory of that daughter, Mrs. Irene Wood, who died during the influenza epidemic of 1918 and it was the first of a series of events which marked the end of his life.

It was his favorite child, his daughter, and it was only through her pleading and her urging that he was persuaded to turn from the grinding toil of supervising a $400,000 business to take in hand the construction of Shawheen Village as she had envisioned it.

When Irene died it marked the first break in an ideal family. In the winter of 1918, when the influenza epidemic had reached its height, it was his health and his business which he had to consider.

WIFE WAITS IN VAIN.

Broken and discouraged, he departed Andover and Shawheen and kept into Melrose, and there he lived until his death, when he was killed himself at Orford, N.H., while his wife waited for his return at home.

Wood, it is said, had ordered his chauffeur to drive him along a lonely road, pleading he was not feeling well and wanted to get away from the noise of the hotel.

DRAMATIC SCENE DUE AT FUNERAL

Bakery Wagon Man Going to New York to Press His Claims to Fortune

Portland, Me., Feb. 3.—Standing beside the bier of the father who discarded him, Henry Hummel, happy-go-lucky bakery man and cowboy extraordinary, will tomorrow identify his father for the first time the two favorite sisters of Abe Hummel, who refuse to admit the legitimacy of Henry's birthright.

A dispatch from London declared that Abe Hummel had been shot at a distance of $1,500,000 to his two sisters, Miss Bertha Hummel and Mrs. Kaffeeburg, who at their death bequeathed to his nephew, Abe Kaffeeburg. The latter is the man who has been identified as the father of Henry's birthright.

The Boston Evening American reporter wrote Henry to appear him of the news after his better had been identified as the father of Henry's birthright. Henry said: "If I get it all I want to do is to place a marker over the grave of my dear mother in Evergreen Cemetery, Portland. Also one over that of my father in New York."

POLA: NEGRI ON WAY TO TRYST WITH SHEIK?

Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 3 (A.P.)—The whereabouts of Pola Negri, movie actress, who left here on a westbound train at midnight, remained a mystery today.

One report indicated she may stop at Gallup, N. M., and meet Rudolph Valentino. Reports have circulated recently that they are contemplating marriage. Valentino is said to have been here today on a westbound train.

Miss Negri had declared she knew nothing of the proposed marriage and said she was here on business. She was considerably disturbed when reporters found her here.

MARVIN, MARINE MANAGER AND EX-HUB MAN, DIES

New York, Feb. 3 (A.P.)—Winthrop L. Marvin, vice-president and general manager of the American Steamship Owners' Association, died today. He was sixty-two years old. Mr. Marvin was a former Boston newspaperman and later identified himself with ocean ship building and ship-owning interests.

I Love Tryst?

SHIFT HUNT FOR P. O. THUGS TO PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Feb. 3.—Search for the four thugs who looted the local postoffice of a quarter of a million in money and stamps centered in Providence today, the post-office detectives, under the leadership of J. J. Breslin, having come to the conclusion that Providence men were the looters.

Breslin further believes the men belong to the same gang which recently did a thriving business in New York State and Pennsylvania. Axtell was used in the breaks in Rushville, New York, West Winfield, New York, and Seven Valleys, Pennsylvania. Not only did this gang of safe-breakers use the same method of operation but their description tallies with those given of the trio who made the local office their target.

While the search is being conducted in Providence the detectives do not believe the gang is made up of local men, but that they took Providence as their headquarters and there planned the raid.

GRASSO GIRL SHOT SELF BY ACCIDENT

Springfield, Feb. 3 (U.S.N.S.)—Mystery in the death of Miss Yolanda Grasso, seventeen-year-old Agawam high school girl, was believed cleared up today by evidence supporting the theory that she accidentally shot herself.

Chief of Police Melvin T. Ransom of Agawam, said that his investigation indicated that the girl found her brother's revolver under a pillow while making his bed and that she tripped on a rug and fell while crowding the floor with the revolver, causing the weapon to discharge.

STATE HOUSE WOMAN FOUND DYING IN SNOW

Found unconscious in the snow in Needham street early today by a passerby. Miss Mary Quinn, 38, of River Street, Dedham, a clerk at the State House, died shortly afterward at her home. A physician, who was summoned, pronounced death due to natural causes. Miss Quinn had attended a social function at the Riverside Club and afterward accompanied a friend to a railroad station. She became exhausted on the long walk home it is believed.

It was understood the purpose was to establish whether traces of alcohol or other poisons were present. Judge Jones was driving the car and was himself injured.

COOK AND DENTIST DOUBT REALTY

Miami Investments Net Couple First $100,000 on Road to a Million

Being a cooking teacher and a dentist, Mrs. Jessie Barber Dawes of the Malden High School and her husband, Dr. F. E. Dawes, Boston dentist, cooked up a first-rate scheme and extracted $100,000 in profits from Florida real estate.

The hard risk of the Dawses toward that first difficult million via Miami, was admitted today by Mrs. Dawes at the high school, between the husband and the one tried with the sunny side up.

A brief dabble in Miami real estate has netted her a profit of $50,000 and her dentist husband, who also is a prominent politician of Wollaston, pulled the same approximate roll out of an investment he made.

HOW IT WORKED

But they did, and for six lots, purchased in the summer of 1924 by Mrs. Dawes for $11,400, she received as a selling price—more than $60,000. New Mrs. and Mrs. Dawes are well on the way to their first million, inasmuch as the couple, who live in Wollaston, also own property at Wollaston, Hingham Neck and Nahant and are contemplating the purchase of an entire island off Miami.

To aid sales home.

When news of the Florida bonanza came through, the dentist and his wife immediately set down and made will leaving the money at their death to the Salvation Army for establishment of a home in Malden for girls.

Good fortune sat lightly today on Mrs. Dawes, who continued to cook and who will continue to hold her job as domestic science teacher in the Malden High School where she has been for twelve years with only three absences.

Their first $100,000 was the hardest, she said today, but after that the money just seemed to roll in until now they face the future with no cash worries.

But Mrs. Dawes, who was married to the dentist-pedagogue in 1914, will continue to arise at 4 a. m., prepare her own and her breakfast and then take her children to school.

LOVES YACHTING

Mrs. Dawes has an office in Boylston. He is a graduate of Harvard and is a familiar figure on the waters off Wollaston with his yacht, the Quincey.

She is a member of the Wollaston Yacht Club, secretary of the Inner-Bay Yacht Racing Association, and a member of the Quincey Yacht Club, Wampanoag Club at Hingham, Neighborhood Club at Wollaston and the Handel and Haydn Society.

Mrs. Dawes is a graduate of Wellesley College, Springfield, O., Columbia University and the Bridgewater Normal School. She has taught domestic science at Newton Technical High School and in Brockton, Hingham and Revere.

DELAY WEEK ON WASON; GOLDBERG IS CONFIRMED

The confirmation of his nomination of George B. Wason as a member of the Metropolitan District Commission which was sent to the Council last week by Governor Fuller, was held up today by opinion of Chief Justice George E. Curran of Boston. The question was set over until next week. Curran declined to give any reason for his motion.

The Council confirmed the nomination of Lewis Goldberg as a member of the Department of Public Utilities and he was immediately sworn in.

AGAWAM DEATH MYSTERY CLEARED---GIRL TRIPPED, PULLING TRIGGER

Chief of Police Ransom of Agawam, in charge. Martho Grasso, brother of the slain girl, whose silence led investigators to believe someone shot her. Grasso home on Meadow street, Agawam. Grasso marks window of room in which John, 15-year-old brother of Yolanda Grasso, found the girl lying on the floor with a bullet wound in the right abdomen and with a revolver clutched in her hand. Yolanda Grasso, Agawam shooting victim, tripped on a rug while holding her brother's revolver, police now believe.

100 CASES OF WINE SEIZED

Police today seized 100 cases of port and sherry wine valued at more than $1,000 in the second raid in two weeks on the home of Solomon Street, Glenwood street, Dorchester. The wine had just been unloaded from an express truck. Patrolmen Garrett and Duffy were serving in order on Dover as the result of the first raid when they saw the truck being unloaded in front of the house. They notified headquarters and Captain George W. Patterson with a squad of men went to the seizer home. The seizure was made just as the last case was unloaded. Sweeper's home was raided more than a week ago, when alleged liquor was seized.

WIFE WHO "DON'T LIKE NOBODY" DISH TARGET

Mrs. Sarah Mindle of Malden, testified today in Suffolk Divorce Court in her divorce action against Abraham Mindle that he showed her with dinner dishes on one occasion when he returned home in the evening and found a man at the house. Mindle has filed a cross-claim charging his wife with unfaithfulness and naming two co-respondents, one of them Larry Goff of Chelsea. On another occasion when Mindle found a man at the house he twisted her wrist until the bones struck out through the flesh, she said. On cross-examination she said she never went to a movie with Goff because she didn't like the movies. She said she was never near enough to Goff to know whether he was bald or not. In reply to a question if she liked Goff, she shouted: "I don't like nobody."

TRIAL OF JOHN TROY AGAIN DELAYED

Worcester, Feb. 3.—The trial of John Troy, alleged gangster, was again delayed today when District Attorney Emerson W. Baker and Dr. C. H. Mason, jail physician, decided that Charles Sullivan, charged with robbery, was well enough to finish standing trial in Superior Court before Judge Nelson P. Brown. Troy's case was to have been substituted for Sullivan's as a result of the latter's illness. The Troy case will go on when the other trial is over, being tentatively set for Friday.

REJECT BILL TO ANNEX REVERE

The bill providing for annexation of Revere to Boston was reported adversely today to the Legislature by the committee on metropolitan affairs, the committee having voted unanimously against the measure. The attention was proposed by citizens of Revere who signed a petition circulated by the Real Estate Tax Payers' Association, the movement having been given impetus by the tax sale of $48,000, the highest in the State. Several hundred Revere taxpayers endorsed the committee report to urge "favorable action on the bill when a public hearing was held last week at the State House, and a petition bearing 4,000 signatures was given to the committee. No one appeared against the bill

Mrs. Coolidge Has New Hat; Yes, It's Brown

Washington, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Coolidge set a new style in advance Spring outfits when she appeared at a tea wearing a large brown hat, with a long sweep plume and a light beige ensemble suit. The catch plume, also brown, started on the left side of the hat and drooped over the right side almost to her waist. It was a distinct change for Mrs. Coolidge, who usually wears simple sport costumes. The tea was given by the National Board of Farm Organizations at that time, while speakers in favor of it urged annexation as a means of reducing the tax rate and thus attracting industries to the city.

PROBES 'GHOST' WOMAN'S WILL

Following sensational developments in a probe of the affairs of Mrs. Mary C. Sterling-French, and her death in Chicago was known as "the ghost woman," a thorough scrutiny of her will was ordered by Probate Judge Henry Horner of Illinois. This examination is to be made in spite of a finding (only by a coroner's chemist that the woman's death was due to natural causes. She died at the home of a neighbor, Mrs. H. B. Dickinson, after abusing her own ramshackle dwelling and left her $18,000 fortune to Mrs. Dickinson. Judge Henry has decided that differences in writing in the will are so slight as to give cause for a complete investigation. He also pointed out that Mrs. Dickinson's husband is related to Alty, Edward, Ostromski, who drew the will and was named executor. Moreover, one of the witnesses is related to the attorney. The finding of the coroner's chemist, Dr. William D. McNally, was the result of a search for poison in the mystery woman's body.

OPERA SINGERS CONTINUE TRIUMPHS BEFORE CAPACITY HOUSES

MRS. WALTER BRUCE HOWE MRS. W. GORDON MEANS MRS. FRANCIS A. SHAW

(Posed Especially for Boston Evening American Staff Photographer Between the Acts at the Opera.)
MRS. FRANK G. CURTIS MRS. BARKLIE MCKEE HENRY MRS. ROBERT D. FARRINGTON MISS ALICE STACKPOLE

APPLAUSE PUNCTUATES EFFORTS OF STARS

TRIUMPHANTLY THE OPERA SEASON BLAZES ACROSS the social skies. Triumphantly does the pagantry of music proceed through high success after high success. For "Pelléas and Mélisande" as for every offering preceding, an Opera House filled to overflowing gave glorious measure of appreciation.

OPERATIONALLY it was an orchestra for the Chicago stars—Gordon and Means, Baklanoff and Chassagne, Kipnis and Freund—and certainly for that Chicago musical personality, George Polacco. Specially, Kipnis and Means Boston were delightful to behold.

SPECIALLY LOVELY was Mrs. Francis P. Shaw in a period gown of white satin, deeply flounced in gossamer, black lace, one rose carnation pinned on her shoulder and another tucked in her hair. Quite in contrast and of the same box party was Mrs. James Jackson Minto, Jr. (Miriam Sorel).

DIAMONDS SCINTILLATED in the plumed bandana banding Mrs. Bear's forehead, and her gown was a Paris creation in rich black velvet with steel design emphasizing in graceful swirl and gothic the headline Dame Fashion most fancied.

AT THE OPPOSITE SIDE of the golden horseshoe Mrs. J. Brooke Fenne, in white chiffon, with accent of black was distinctly handsome to look upon. Likewise Mrs. Augustus Hall Rantoul, in turquoise brocade chiffon.

MRS. DAME RANDOLPH MOR-GAN APPLETON, Ernest Moros, George L. Cushing (she entertained for Formal earlier in the week), George L. Bartholomew, George T. Keyes and William A. Gaston lent dignity and sturting costume to the superb-dramatic scene.

YOUTHFULLY RADIANT, Mrs. Sidney W. Winslow, Jr., was all in rose, her gown of rose velvet matching in tone the glinting rose and gold metal clasp of her wrap, which had wide bands of soft chin-chin.

BUT, HOWEVER brilliant the senior matrons, the evening

Hub's Flare for Opera Wins Stars' Praises

JOSE MOJICA, the handsome young Pelléas: Boston has shown a marvellous appreciation of opera and gives it a wonderful welcome. To sing in Boston gives me the greatest joy. My best role is of course Pelléas. If I please my audiences in that I am very happy.

ROSA RAISA, the radiant beauty who sings Mistress Ford in the merry "Falstaff": Such intelligent audiences as there are in Boston! It is a pleasure to sing to them. And such a beautiful opera house, and such a pity that Boston has not a company of its own. I am sure there is a great love for good music here.

GIACOMO RIMINI, the Sir John Falstaff: Boston audiences are perhaps the greatest in the whole world. They have discrimination and a fine musical sense. Their appreciation means very much to me, and to other artists.

FORREST LAMONT, who today is Lohengrin in Richard Wagner's opera: I enjoy singing in Boston, because many of my roles this season are Wagnerian and Boston appreciates the German opera. The audiences are most intelligent, most keenly appreciative. Boston delights me in the way they receive opera.

was, predominantly, a "Young Set" affair. And very wonderful it is to this behold youthful Boston turning out so eagerly for opera.

MRS. HARRIS LIVERMORE, in a marvellously effective black chiffon and silver gown brought a small daughter to hear Debussy's masterpiece. Mrs. Robert Livermore also had a daughter with her, both girls quite wide-eyed with anticipation and enthusiasm.

EQUALLY ENTHUSIASTIC were the boys who've nightly done lowly Frodo and gorgeous opera wraps for a fling at the season's very brilliant two weeks of high musical feasting. For instance, Miss Helen Lovett, in multi-colored great metal clasp and tulle.

AND MISS DOROTHY LAW, KENNEDY, in Ming brocade chiffon; Miss Helen Mosley in gown of pearly tulle and wrap of deep white fur; Miss Miriam Winslow in morning glory crepe, and Miss Alice Warren Winslow in sea blue.

LEWIS, Miss Harriet Dalton, still in befowered tulle.

sets with hem and bertha of beige net.

MRS. JOHN K. HOWARD'S frock was flower tinted chiffon; Miss Hope Gaston's a velvet with exquisite (she had her fiancé, Cora, Conway Fulton, in attendance); Mrs. Francis Bacon Lodrop's frock a peach (she was in the John G. Cooke box).

ALL IN WHITE, Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, Jr., chose to follow the picture mode, the robe de style that French creators love to harken for Molière's adoration. Mrs. Lynde Cochran wore black, Mrs. Thorndike Dudley Howe, yellow green, and Mrs. Edward M. Pickman black velvet.

THE GOLD GOWN of Mrs. Robert A. Leeson, the white satin of Mrs. Dudley R. Howe, the black and chin-chin of Miss Eleanor Sears, the gleaming white satin of Mrs. Pleasant L. Stockpole, the black and let of Mrs. Rockwell Brewster Potts were notable in the assemblage.

OF COURSE, MRS. ALVAN T. FULLER was her usual handsome self, in a gown that scintillated in the way approved by Fashion. Mrs. Fuller's opera gown was a very suggestion of delight, and the envy of many a beholder.

NATURALLY THERE was much interest in the box, war at the end of the circle, which held Lady Whitfield Elwes and her two pretty daughters, the Misses Margaret and Claire Elwes. These charming Englishwomen, during their protracted stay in town, have been noted in royal fashion.

Mary Garden Triumphs as Mélisande

By MARY SMITH
With a house sold out long in advance, the Chicago Opera Company presented Debussy's "Pelléas and Mélisande" at the Opera House. The spectators must have hoped a harvest on last night's show, for the demand for tickets was tremendous.

Last year's Boston performance of his opera by the Chicago company, a performance which Mary Garden is quoted as having termed the finest she had ever seen or participated in, stirred up a great deal of interest in this season's presentation. With such a standard established, it was very difficult for the Chicago company to better it, but they came very close to it.

Mélisande is the Garden role above all others. Even if she was not vocally as satisfactory last night as in the previous performances, she managed to create considerable illusion as the unmarrying heroine.

To get back to the performance, Miss Garden forgets that Pelléas is a prima donna, and sets about to portray character, to act and sing in the spirit of Masterpiece's text and Debussy's music.

And the opera itself deserves this treatment, for as every musician will tell you, "Pelléas" is the new classic example of music perfectly adapted to play. Not even Wagner, writing his own librettos as well as music, could accomplish such delicate adjustment. There are some groffers who say that the work is not an opera at all; it is merely a play with musical accompaniment. Even if this is true, it does not detract from the poignancy of the drama nor does it deny the marvelous beauty with which Debussy lends atmosphere to the play. Nor, if one listens to the music itself, can one fail to get the beautiful things in the score.

Jose Mojica was the Pelléas once more. Anything closer to the ideal Pelléas probably doesn't exist. Mr. Mojica has certain limitations—not artistic, but of inherent vocal equipment. But working within these limitations, he does everything possible with exquisite taste. And Pelléas is a character which does not show up these limitations. What an admirable love he makes, what admirable singing! What perfect French diction!

George Baklanoff made an excellent Odo. He, too, enunciated his French with admirable clearness. In fact, anyone with an elementary knowledge of French listening to the performance should have had no difficulty in getting most of the text. Of course Debussy is heavily responsible for this, also, for he never allows the orchestra to drown out the singers. The orchestral score is so refined that you can count the fortissimos in the whole work on the fingers of one hand.

The other characters are minor ones. Alexander Kipnis as Arkel, Maria Chassagne as Genevieve, Helen Freund as the little Ysolt, and Antonio Nivola as the physician, filled in not only capably, but entirely within the spirit of the play. Mr. Polacco's part in the success of the production was no small one. He handled to a nicety the job of keeping the orchestra and singers in a perfect balance.

MO-TWEEK RECORD BROKE AT AUTO SHOW IN CHICAGO

Enormous Crowds Drawn by New Cars and Scenes; Bus Men Organize

The greatest automobile show the Middle West has ever witnessed is drawing record breaking crowds to the Coliseum in Chicago, where the twenty-sixth annual national automobile show is at its height.

Bees of unusual beauty are vying with the new car designs in drawing the throngs, the mammoth building having been transformed into a Coliseum in Chicago, where the twenty-sixth annual national automobile show is at its height.

As the automobile season swings into its stride, announcement is made of state toward the permanent organization of the gigantic bus industry of the country, those steps being taken at a meeting in Washington of the governing board of the bus division of the American Automobile Association.

This was the first meeting of the board in its capacity as the permanent organization of the bus division, which is to represent the bus interest of the country in a national field.

BUS LEGISLATION. In addition to electing Ralph W. Barlow of Cleveland as chairman of the board, the meeting took up several of the most pressing issues confronting the bus operators of the country at the present time.

The foremost place in the discussion was given to the pending legislation for the regulation of buses operating in interstate commerce.

An official legislative committee was appointed by the board to represent the bus interests of the nation in connection with the proposed regulatory legislation. This new committee will replace the unofficial committee that represented the bus operators during the early stages of the legislative discussion. The committee consists of the following members:

R. A. Markel, chairman, of legislative committee of Motor Bus Association of Virginia; chairman, George P. McCallum, president of Michigan Highway Transportation Association; James M. Swift, president of Motor Coach Association of New England; A. M. Hill, president of West Virginia Motor Transportation Association; H. H. Moore, president of Kansas and Missouri Bus Association; Thomas L. Hodge, vice-president of Pennsylvania Motor Association; W. R. Travis, president of Motor Carriers' Association of California; alternates, Ralph M. Speker, chairman of board of trustees of Motor Coach Association of New England; for Mr. Swift, F. L. Williams, of Ohio Motor Bus Owners' Association, for Mr. Hill.

PERMANENT BODY. The board reviewed the Committee Bill scheduled to come up for hearings about the middle of February. It decided on certain amendments which are considered necessary to protect more adequately the interests of the bus operators. The amendments recommended will be introduced through the different state associations and will also be submitted to the legislative committee of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners, the American Railway Association, and the American Electric Railway Association, together with a suggestion that an early conference be held between these organizations and the bus representatives in order to ascertain if an agreement can be reached before the hearings at the Capitol commence.

It was decided by the board that a meeting of representatives of affiliated member associations is at the present time nearly representative of all the state associations there are a little more than a little more than to complete the plans for affiliation. Affiliated states recently affiliated are Washington, Oregon, California, Michigan, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island. It is expected that within the next two or three weeks the remaining associations will have taken the necessary action to become part of the national organization.

Priest Honored GALA PROGRAM FOR SATURDAY SKATE CONTEST

Prospect of Ideal Ice Conditions Brings Multitude of Entries

Pine skating weather promises to hold good for Saturday when the East Boston eliminations in the Boston Evening American Gold and Silver Skates Jubilee Races will be held at World War Memorial Park.

Entries are coming in so thick and fast that the sponsors of the big gala event predict an even more successful series of events even than marked the eliminations in Charleston and West Hartford.

But it is essential that all eligible skaters get in their entry blanks as soon as possible so that the Skate Editor may know approximately how many will be on hand when the wheels blow for the start of the races.

There is an entry blank accompanying this article, and all that is necessary is to fill it out correctly and mail it to the Skate Editor, 300 North Main street, Boston, Mass.

Remember that the winners in each event next Saturday will not only receive the chance to compete for the gold and silver skates, but they will also receive silver skates for Sunday's performance.

Everything is in readiness to make next Saturday one of the festive days of the season for the East Boston district. In addition to the races themselves, there will be plenty of entertainment for contestants and spectators.

The racing skaters who have secured such high in the previous eliminations will be on hand with their expert figures, while their comely skates will have charge of Saturday's events, while there will be of his best suits for the benefit of the day's events.

"Rainbow Rose"
Where Voices Count
Tempted by Miami
Film Invasion
By NICHOLAS YOUNG

LET'S go straight to the point! Voices still count for something in musical comedy, and it's the score and the lyrics that make the voices seem worth-while. Nothing is more certain than that in "Rainbow Rose" at the Plymouth, a frolicsome affair in which George MacFarlane counts along in vocal meriment to entrancing tunes by Harold Levy.

MANY doubtful seasons have rolled past the anxious playgoer since musical comedy crowded the Plymouth. It has been a long wait—but a happy one. "Rainbow Rose" should attract popular fancy and set up a load of new excitement on Stuart street, chiefly because it is not the same old story told in new settings, with new faces and stimulated with new tunes, but because there is character in the unfolding. Of course, all these things can take place, but the melody does seem brighter and you know in the first ten minutes of action that the voices are pitched for the man who can enjoy the genuine article and weep at the imitation.

ATTEMPT at "Rainbow Rose" is just another musical comedy

with delicious reservations. Its settings are superb, its cast is adequate and its musical balance is so perfect that not a single flaw is visible. In narrative material there is much that is familiar; romance stalks through the three acts in the usual fashion of such things. Downside and daughter unfound each other, smart young men dance merrily in the best of modern dance dress, and an adorable comedienne aids his own galaxy to the evening.

MACFARLANE, however, brings on honest heart and a lot of stimulating voice into the proceedings; Hansford Wilson does faithful service as a blondish comely; Jack Whiting plays a reliable whistler, dances gorgeously and generally makes himself useful to the nervous ingenue, agreeably played by Miss Billy Tichner. These items are but passing incidents in a play evening—an evening made brighter and happier by that cooing baritone, George MacFarlane.

A Live Serial of Love and Temptation Right Here In Boston

READ THIS FIRST:

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty girls, the daughters of a widowed mother. They work for Dexter Co., big Congress street bond firm.

Mary Rose is secretary to JOHN MANNERS, the sales manager, and is in love with him. He's engaged to DORIS,

"Mr. Dexter, do you know where my sister Flossie is?" asked Mary Rose.

HINING, an actress. Because of her feeling for him, Mary Rose repeatedly refuses to marry DR. TOM FITZROY.

Flossie, a born vamp, is carrying on a flirtation with the head of the concern, HILARY DEXTER, although she's engaged to his secretary, SAM JESSUP.

John Manners falls in love with Mary Rose, and tells her he'll always care for her, although he's bound in all duty and honor to marry Doris.

The sisters quarrel, and to get even with Mary Rose, Flossie tells John that she is "just staying him along," pretending that she cares for him, and really is in love with Dexter. Manners believes Flossie's convincing lie, and Mary Rose wonders at his sudden coldness toward her.

MRS. DEXTER finds Flossie's monogrammed vanity case in her husband's car. When she comes to his office to tell him she's going to divorce him, she finds Mary Rose there taking his dictation. Mistaking her for Flossie, she loudly accuses her of trying to steal her husband from her. The whole office force hears the undeserved tongue lashing that Mary Rose receives, and the girls snub her. Flossie, the real culprit, begs her not to tell that it was really she who was in the car with Dexter, because she's afraid that if Sam finds it out he won't marry her.

And Mary Rose, who prayerfully hopes that Sam will marry Flossie and get her out of Dexter's way, takes the blame and the snubs. One night Dexter goes too far in his love making with Flossie, and she finds out that he won't marry her, about a girl who'll go out with him. The next day she leaves home, bag and baggage. And that night a special delivery letter comes for her. Mr. Middleton gives it to Mary Rose to read.

(Now Go On With the Story.)

CHAPTER XLVII

Copyright, 1928, Johnson Reiter, Inc. But no Sam could be found when his home was telephoned by Marie Rose. She knew somehow that she couldn't get him.

Then she turned again to the letter. It was a mailed of a single short paragraph, badly typed. It was not signed.

But the minute that Mary Rose started to read it she knew that Hilary Dexter had written to her. It sounded just like him—heavy and stiff.

"My dear little girl," he wrote. "You will hear as you grow that life is a constant struggle between right and wrong, between love and duty. I think you know which you represent to me. And do I make myself clear when I say to you that you will not be annoyed again by me if you will come back to work? It is not pleasant to me to know that you have given up your job because of me. My only excuse for last night's blunder is that I lost my head, as any man could lose it over you."

DEXTER REVEALED

Mary Rose could imagine the shout of scornful laughter with which Flossie would have greeted the effused message. "He must have birds on his wrist to write the stuff," she would probably have said, exclaiming derisively.

"You know who wrote that letter, don't you, Mary Rose?" Mrs. Middleton asked her, so suddenly that she gave a start.

"Yes, mother, I do know," she said, holding the paper and putting it back into the envelope.

She gave notice that she should have told her mother about Flossie and Mr. Dexter long ago—no longer ago than the day last Spring, when Flossie had come to her to insist that she

LOSES FIGHT FOR GRANDCHILDREN

PAID BY COURT

Aged Woman Declared Unable and Lacking Money to Care for Three Tots

Newburyport, Feb. 3.—The long arm of the law reached out and plucked three sobbing children from the protecting arms of their grandmother here, and stern justice all but broke the heart of 78-year-old Jane Dow.

Mrs. Dow is a poor woman, but only income being her pension as the widow of a Civil War veteran. Yet when her daughter and her son-in-law, John S. Howe, both disappeared, leaving their three little ones to face the world, the old woman culled up the three in her mothering arms and took them to her home here.

But neighbors knew the awful struggle the woman faced. Too old to go out to work she was forced to make shift for four on the means pension.

Those neighbors, more in pity for the struggle for life the four paid than in cause of the children's grandmother, reported the case to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and Mrs. Dow and the children were taken before Judge Nelson.

Judge Nelson ruled that the woman had not the resources to bring the children up properly, and he gave over the three little ones to the care of the State.

Court attendants, hurried to ready and courtroom operators, however, placed, wept their eyes furiously as the children and their grandmother were allowed their last few minutes together. All were weeping. The little one understanding only that they were to be taken from her, while "Granny" herself realized that she was facing the closing years of her life alone and lonely.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

ARE WE GROWING "MIXED"?
THEY were women were so purely feminine that they faintly and fluttered, were frightened at mice, and needed man's help for every little thing. They were as weak plants requiring protection.

Now we grow our plants differently and the prop has almost entirely gone out of fashion. If we still find a weak plant, as we certainly no more belong in our modern gardens and we feel pointing but pity for her droopiness.

Well, too, it seems to me, are not the mixed machine creatures they once were—perhaps here and there the woman has less need for their more masculine

There is a certain ruggedness of the sex which I am not quite sure I approve, but which is the inevitable result of woman's emancipation.

Especially the girl who is boys. If it is her independence, her force and more need for intellect. Women are more able to look after themselves and civilization has done away with many of the physical terrors of mankind the gentle female.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT TO DANCE AND BE MERRY

The Time: Tonight at 8 o'clock.
The Place: Strand Ballroom, No. 177 Huntington avenue.
The Price: Fifty cents per head.

The Object: Charity—and a darn good time.

It's the second old-time dance of the Boston Evening American, of course, and well will you revivify yourself on the morrow if you forget to remember tonight.

The prize are all assembled, the floor is all waxed, the fiddles are all tuned up and the few tickets available are ready to be sold at the door.

From the enthusiasm, seemingly, the whole town intends to go and dance again the old steps brought back into favor by Henry Ford—the gap, the Virginia reel, scotch-tie, Portland fancy, quadrille, mazurka, polka and the others.

And it may interest you to know that Rosalie Hawley, the pretty girl waltzer, who had no partner and who asked for gallant volunteers, has made her selection from among the many cavaliers. Keep your eyes on Rosalie.

The prize waits, with the three winning couples receiving prizes, one for each man and one for each girl, is open to everybody, of course, exceptable first place couple in the first prize wait to be awarded.

And the old-time fiddlers' contest is open to all bowlers, except to John Franklin, winner of the first contest. A beautiful cup will be awarded the winner in this event.

Come to the old-time dance. You will enjoy yourself to the fullest.

BEAUTY SHOPS IN PLEA FOR STATE REGULATION
Judge J. Albert Buckner, representing a group of twelve hairdressers at a hearing held at the State House, advocated regulating hair, dressing and beauty shops for the protection of the public. Several statements were also given where women have been horribly disfigured by inexperienced "beauty artists."

QUEEN MARY WILL WRITE FOR SCREEN
Los Angeles, Feb. 1 (A.P.)—Queen Marie of Romania, granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England and regular correspondent of the Boston Evening American, is to become a writer for the screen. It was announced here today. The Queen has agreed to write a scenario which will be reproduced in Los Angeles.

GIRL SAYS TRIP CAUSED RINK STABBING

The quarrel that led to the fatal stabbing of Alfred J. Levesque in a Cambridge rink skating rink, whose death Robert L. C. Shaffer of Boston is on trial, today when Shaffer tripped Levesque and a girl companion, according to testimony in Middlesex Superior Court by Gertrude McArthur of "Maid with Gun."

Miss McArthur, known among her chums as "Blonde," was the fourth girl witness to tell of events on the night of November 8 when Levesque, a native New Yorker, was shot at the Pavilion Rink.

"I was chatting with friends in a box near the floor surface when I saw Shaffer," she testified.

"Soon afterward I had taken off my skates and was standing near the telephones when Shaffer ran past, a knife in his hand. Levesque and Polhemus Maher ran after him, and Levesque shouted, 'Look, it's a knife, he's got a knife.'"

"They caught Shaffer as he started I was within four feet of them. I saw Shaffer shove his hand toward Levesque's neck and Levesque cried, 'He's stabbed me again.'"

"I rushed toward him and saw that he was coming to life in the police station and he produced a new purported to be Shaffer's second statement.

He admitted the knife found in the accused man's pocket was close to him. He alleged statement, Shaffer said he used a knife to ward off attacks by Levesque and felt the knife go into Levesque's body as the latter grasped his hair.

PUT CONVICTS ON PAY BASIS, FLEET OF BATES
Establishing a daily wage for inmates of the State Prison was ordered today by Commissioner of Correction Sanford Bates and a number of social welfare workers at a hearing before the legislative committee on public institutions.

Because the inmates have no funds to start life when leaving the institution it was argued, they are tempted to again break the law.
